Apr 2025 - May 2025

As part of my web development training, I built a front-end clone of the Stack Overflow website using HTML, CSS and JavaScript. The project includes a responsive layout with a navigation bar, sidebar, question section and footer, closely matching the original design. I used Flexbox, Grid and basic JavaScript interactions. This project strengthened my understanding of semantic HTML, modern CSS and responsive design, and improved my ability to analyse real websites and recreate them from scratch. It is hosted on GitHub Pages as a showcase of my front-end skills.
